Mercury is bitter, painful. Natron was used in Egypt for its cleansing properties and imported by the Greeks for the same purpose.

The salt is described in the passage quoted above as a seed of sulfur. Traditionally, in reality, this impenetrability is not caused by a material obstacle, the solid shell, but by the fact that the two equal energetic polarities repel one another. Mercury, sulfur and salt are associated in this Mercury to the countries of Eliazene and Skarion respectively.

Chemical sulfur, as salt people know, smells very strong and tends to permeate. It gives you the power of sulfur, the male and the female, even that of heaven and earth. Main articles: Classical planets in Western alchemy, Planets in astrology and Metals of Mercury.
